The Limit of Life.

The most eminent medical scientists are unanimous in the conclusion that the generally accepted limitation of human life is many years below the attainment possible with the advanced knowledge of which the race is now possessed. The critical period, that determines its duration, seems to be between 50 and 60; the proper care of the body during this decade cannot be too strongly urged; carelessness then being fatal to longevity. Nature's best helper after 50 is Electric Bitters, the scientific tonic medicine that revitalizes every organ of the body. Guaranteed by Oberdorfer, the druggist. 50 cents.

Good For Evil.

There are some people who turn gray, but do not grow hoary; whose faces are furrowed, but not wrinkled; whose hearts are sorely wounded in many places, but are not dead. There is a youth that bids defiance to old age, and there is a kindness which laughs at the world's usage. These are they who have returned good for evil. Whom he gods love die young, and they die young because they never grow old. Selected.

Awkwardly Put.

This is one of the things one would rather have put differently: Mr. Rumbleup (at fancy dress ball)—I must apologize for coming in ordinary evening dress. Hostess—Well, you really have the advantage of us. We're all looking more foolish than usual, and you're not.—Punch.

Little Thinking.

Mr. Borely (who has been criticizing)—Now, don't be offended. You know, I always say what I think. Miss Cutting—You don't talk much, do you, Mr. Borely?—Illustrated Bits.

Do Ostriches Ever Die?

Nothing is positively known as to how long an ostrich will live. Some writers claim that it will live 100 years. Ostriches which are known to have been in captivity for forty years are still breeding and producing feathers. It is the experience of Arizona farmers that among the birds having good nutritious green feed fleas seldom occur except as the result of accident. A dog or other small animal will sometimes frighten ostriches and cause them to run into the fence, which may result in a broken leg. When this happens the bird may as well be killed, as few ever recover from such an injury.—National Geographic Magazine.

ANCIENT FINANCE.

Trading in the Days Before Money Was In Circulation.

Assyria, with her immense hosts and her spacious and magnificent cities, had no money; Egypt—opulent, populous and abundant Egypt—had no money; ancient Persia, before the age of the first Darius, had no money; the early Hebrews, and even during the most prosperous period of the age of Solomon and down to the time of Jesus Macabaeus, were without money; Etruria from first to last was without money; Rome was without money to the time of Servius Tullius, and the Greeks of the heroic ages were equally destitute of money. Among all these nations gold and silver, when used in barter, were weighed out by the scales, as when Abraham purchased the cave of Macpelah "he weighed to Ephron the silver which he had named in the audience of the sons of Heth."

Anciently there was no money in Arabia, or the riches of the patriarch Job would not have been estimated by his camels, oxen and she asses. India, Persia, Assyria, Judaea, Egypt, Greece, Etruria, Rome, the nations of Asia Minor, including Tyre and its dependencies, all arrived at civilization and comfort without the current use of cash and carried on their extensive mercantile and manufacturing transactions merely by bartering commodities in kind, bullion being reckoned among those commodities. These nations were populous almost beyond credibility and transported their produce, manufactures and other merchandise in ships of Tyre and Tarshish from Ophir and the utmost Indian isle (Ceylon) to Gaul and the "tin Islands" of Scilly or Vigo. —New York Press.

LOOK TO THE FUTURE.

And Do Not Let the Past Spoil the Days That Are to Come.

There is nothing more depressing than dwelling upon lost opportunities or a misspent life. Whatever your past has been, forget it. If it throws a shadow upon the present or causes melancholy or despondency, there is nothing in it which helps you, there is not a single reason why you should retain it in your memory, and there are a thousand reasons why you should bury it.

The future's your meat block of marble. Beware how you smite it. Don't touch it without a programme. Don't strike a blow with your chisel without a model. lest you ruin and mar forever the angel which lives within the block. But the past marbles, which you have carved into hideous images which have warped and twisted the ideals of your youth and caused you infinite pain, need not ruin or mar the meat block before you. This is one of the merciful provisions that every day present to every human being, no matter how unfortunate his past, a new meat block of pure marble, so that every day every human being has a new chance to retrieve the past, to improve upon it if he will.

Nothing is more foolish, more positively wicked, than to drag the skeletons of the past, the hideous images, the foolish deeds, the unfortunate experiences of the past into today's work to mar and spoil it. There are plenty of people who have been failures up to the present moment who could do wonders in the future if they could only forget the past and start anew.—Success.

To Be Buried Side By Side.

Milton Willett and Gip Hoskins, aged fifteen and fourteen respectively, were drowned in a slough near Henderson, Ky. They were skating when the ice gave way, precipitating them in ten feet of water. Hoskins was the first to go under and Willett went to the rescue. Hoskins grabbed Willett and both found watery graves clasped together. They will be buried side by side.

Railroad Indicted for Manslaughter.

Chalres H. Sanford, Commonwealth's Attorney at New Castle, Ky., has procured an indictment by the grand jury of the Henry Circuit Court against the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company, on the charge of involuntary manslaughter. This is the first time that an indictment on that charge was ever returned against a railroad in Kentucky.

The indictment is founded on the killing of Press Corbin in a railroad collision on the road of the accused company, which occurred several months ago. If the indictment can be sustained on the charge in the Circuit and Appellate courts, it will amount to a radical departure in criminal practice, and will no doubt affect the civil practice so far as damage suits are concerned.

A Good Idea.

It is noted in an exchange that a certain large dry goods store in that place makes a practice of loaning umbrellas to its lady patrons who are caught out in a storm without this necessary article. All that the lady who wants to borrow an umbrella does is to leave her name, and the store does the rest—that is, sends for the umbrella later, so that the very disagreeable task of lugging the shower stick back is rendered unnecessary. This move is a great stroke of policy, for the ladies who are caught out in a storm unprotected know just where to go; and of course they feel like repaying the courtesy by a liberal patronage of that store. Paris merchants might adopt this bright idea with excellent results.

Little Thing to be Fined For.

Because he spanked his wife with a slipper, August M. Thorson, a box maker, was fined $100 in the Kansas City Police Court Wednesday. She said it was the second time he had spanked her in the same way in their two years of wedded life.

"He gave me $5 Saturday morning to pay on our furniture bill," said Mrs. Thorson. "Saturday night he 'slipped' the bill out of my purse and spent $2.50 of it at a saloon. When I protested he turned me over his knee and spanked me hard with a slipper."

Just to think of a man being fined $100 for giving his wife a little spanking, its too bad. What will finally become of the poor man anyway. Looks like he hasn't got a chance.
